

College of Education

Department of Communication Sciences and Special Education

The Department of Communication Sciences and Special Education at the University of Georgia invites applications for the position of Associate Professor or Assistant Professor with expertise in pediatric speech-language pathology. This is a tenure-track faculty position to begin in August 2019.

Responsibilities will include all of the following and other duties as assigned:

- Develop and sustain a line of research that contributes to scientific advancement in an area related to child speech and/or language.
- Actively pursue external funding for research.
- Teach undergraduate and graduate courses (face-to-face, online, and/or blended), and mentor and advise students.
- Engage in departmental, college, university, and professional service.

Required Qualifications for this position include all of the following:

- An earned doctorate (Ph.D. or equivalent) in speech-language pathology or a closely related field (or degree to be awarded before the position's start date).
- A record of high-quality scholarly publications, such as peer-reviewed journal articles.
- A record of obtaining external funding to support research programs, or demonstrable potential.
- A record of successful teaching at the university level, or demonstrable potential.
- A record of collaborative, professional interactions or service supporting students, the institution, or the discipline.

The appointment will be for the regular 9-month academic year. Additional opportunities for summer employment may be available. Salary will be competitive and commensurate with experience and qualifications.

Applications should be submitted through <http://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/31733> and will require all of the following:

- A letter of application specifically responsive to the position's responsibilities and required qualifications as described above.
- A complete curriculum vitae.
- All undergraduate and graduate transcripts.
- The names of three persons who can provide letters of reference. If the candidate prefers his or her interest in this position to remain confidential, state this request in the list of references; references will then not be contacted until the search committee has corresponded with the applicant.

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

Questions may be addressed to the search committee chair (Dr. Jennifer Brown, jbrown8@uga.edu) or to the department head (Dr. Cynthia Vail, cvail@uga.edu).

Review of applications will begin October 31, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

The University of Georgia (www.uga.edu) is a land grant/sea grant institution. Its main campus is located in Athens, Georgia. Athens is known for its music, art, and food as well as its accessibility to the Atlanta area (see www.visitathensga.com and www.georgia.gov). The Communication Sciences and Disorders program offers a bachelor's degree, a CAA-accredited master's degree, and the only research doctorate in communication sciences and disorders in Georgia. Information about the full CSSE department can be found at www.coe.uga.edu/csse.

The CSSE department is committed to enhancing the diversity of the department and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to these goals are encouraged to apply and to identify their strengths and experiences in this area in their cover letter. The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, ethnicity, age, genetic information, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation, or protected veteran status. Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact Central HR (hrweb@uga.edu). Please do not contact the department or search committee with such requests.

This position is contingent on the continued availability of funding.